NYU Abu Dhabi

Established in partnership between New York University (NYU) and the emirate of Abu Dhabi, NYU Abu Dhabi (NYUAD) has assembled over the past decade a remarkable community of scholars, students, researchers, artists, inventors, and others who have contributed to the growth of the UAE's capital as a global hub of knowledge and culture, while establishing a new model of higher education for today's complex world.

NYU Abu Dhabi, which welcomed its inaugural class in 2010, was founded upon a shared understanding of the essential roles and challenges of higher education in the 21st century. Shared principles include:

- a common belief in the value of a liberal arts education;
- concurrence on the benefits a research university brings to the society that sustains it;
- A conviction that interaction with new ideas and people who are different is valuable and necessary;
- and a commitment to educating students who are true citizens of the world.

A Global University

NYU in New York, NYU Abu Dhabi, and NYU Shanghai form the backbone of NYU's global network of degree-granting campuses and academic centers across six continents that enable seamless international mobility of students and faculty in their pursuit of academic and scholarly activity. The first of its kind, this global university represents a transformative shift in higher education, one in which the intellectual and creative endeavors of academia are shaped and examined through an international and multicultural perspective. Designed to draw the most talented and creative students and faculty from around the world, it enables those students and faculty to circulate throughout the network while retaining access to the University's intellectual community and resources.

NYU Abu Dhabi's international composition, rigorous academic program, innovative research capacity, and location at the crossroads of the Arab world creates valuable opportunities for faculty and students across the global network to engage in academic dialogue in the Middle East and beyond.

Leadership

NYU Abu Dhabi – a portal campus of New York University, which is led by President Andrew Hamilton – is headed by Vice Chancellor Mariët Westermann. Westermann joined NYU Abu Dhabi from The Andrew W. Mellon Foundation where she served as Executive Vice President. She is also the former provost of NYU Abu Dhabi, former director of NYU's Institute of Fine Arts, and an art historian. Westermann joined NYU Abu Dhabi in August 2019.

The Core draws on the diversity and cultural wealth of the world's traditions and spans the content and methodologies of 21st-century disciplines across the Arts and Humanities, Engineering, Science, and Social Science. It offers Core Competencies that will help graduates address major global challenges, including the pursuit of equality, justice, peace, health, sustainability, and a rich understanding of humanity.

Graduating students complete a Capstone project during their final year. It is a year-long individual or group endeavor that aims at a significant piece of research or creative work — a historical narrative, musical composition, performance, invention, documented experiment, scholarly thesis, or other form appropriate to each student's goals. Unlike other courses in which faculty establish the structure and set assignments, the Capstone project puts the student in charge and challenges him or her to enter unmapped terrain.

NYU Abu Dhabi also offers 11 Global PhD Student Fellowships in collaboration with Graduate School of Arts and Science at NYU New York and NYU Tandon School of Engineering.

The University also recently launched two new, full-time master's programs in Economics and Fine Arts. The first accredited Master of Science in Economics in the UAE offers students a blend of theoretical and quantitative analytical modules, enabling them to learn how to analyze complex data and solve economic problems, as well as apply economic theory and quantitative techniques to understand key economic issues. The Master of Fine Arts in Art and Media program, a first in the UAE, aims to attract promising, creative talent looking to thrive in a studio-based learning environment. Over time, the institution will offer additional graduate degree-granting and professional programs.
